DBRS Places 38 European Banking Groups Under Review Negative due to Systemic Support

Industry: Fin.Svc.--Banks & Trusts, Fin.Svc.--Credit Unions & Building Societies, Fin.Svc.--Non-Bank Financials

DBRS Inc. and DBRS Ratings Limited, collectively DBRS, have placed Under Review with Negative Implications the senior debt and deposit ratings of 38 banking groups in Europe that currently benefit from some uplift for systemic support. The short-term debt ratings of 16 banking groups were also placed Under Review with Negative Implications.

These rating actions reflect DBRS's view that recent developments in European regulation and legislation mean that there is less certainty about the likelihood of timely systemic support for these systemically important banks (SIBs). Currently, the final ratings of such banks benefit from an uplift of one or more notches above their intrinsic assessment (IA).

In addition to the 38 banking groups placed under review today, the reviews of a further 3 banking groups that were already Under Review with Negative or Developing Implications, will now also incorporate a review of the support assumptions. The 41 banking groups that could see their ratings downgraded include 39 banking groups that currently have 1 notch of uplift in their senior debt and deposit rating and 2 banking groups with 2 notches or more of uplift.

During the review period, which is expected to be completed in September, DBRS will also consider: the relative ranking of deposits compared to senior unsecured debt, any benefit provided to senior debt ratings by higher levels of subordinated debt and equity, and the treatment of government-owned banks. Any final rating action on individual banks will also take into account any positive trends in a bank's fundamental creditworthiness.

BACKGROUND

The Bank Recovery & Resolution Directive (BRRD) was enacted on 15 May 2014 and has been effective in European Union countries since January 2015, with the bail-in option to be available from January 2016. To date Germany, the UK and Austria have enacted BRRD into national legislation. Other countries are expected to complete the process within the next few months.

Under BRRD, the requirement that at least 8% of total liabilities absorb losses before any funding can be provided by resolution funds, means that the risk of senior bondholders absorbing losses at the point of failure is, in DBRS's opinion, greater than before.

In addition, progress is being achieved in other areas that would facilitate the resolution of systemically important banks. Individual banks are working with regulators on improving their resolvability. Some of the rules that will support this process – including the implementation of MREL (minimum requirement for own funds and eligible liabilities) and TLAC (total loss absorbing capital) – are still to be finalised, but in the meantime many banks have increased their loss absorbing capital and liabilities, including in some cases building up loss absorbing capacity at the holding company level to aid resolution.

At the same time, banks are also working on improving their risk profiles and risk management, as well as refocusing their franchises and streamlining their operations. Efforts to improve the resolvability of individual banks also include progress on limiting the risk of contagion. This includes the strengthening of individual banks to make them more resilient in the face of the deterioration and resolution of a single bank. At the same time, progress is also being made on making the financial markets less susceptible to disruption from the resolution of a SIB. For example, the increase in the flow of transactions through clearing houses, and the treatment of derivatives for a bank in distress.

In addition, the ability of regulators and supervisors to take action has improved and they have not only the legislative power, but also stronger capabilities to resolve individual banks and manage any fallout from contagion. Most notable is the role of the European Central Bank in the supervision of major banks in countries in the Eurozone.

NORWAY

DBRS expects that Norway, as a member of the European Economic Area (EEA), will implement legislation that resembles the BRRD, and therefore the support assumptions for Norwegian banks are also being reviewed.

SWITZERLAND

While BRRD does not apply in Switzerland, DBRS views the Swiss resolution regime as moving in the same direction as the path taken by European Union countries, implying that the likelihood and predictability of support has declined. The Swiss regulator has detailed its preferred resolution strategy as being single-point of entry, and legislation has been passed to provide the legal basis for resolution proceedings. While the resolution strategy allows for flexibility, it clearly expresses the strong political will to avoid any state support to banks.

APPLICATION OF DBRS SUPPORT CRITERIA

For banking groups that are considered systemically important, DBRS generally assigns a support assessment (SA) of SA2 indicating the likelihood of timely systemic support. This approach to systemic support is set out in DBRS Criteria: Support Assessments for Banks and Banking Organizations (March 2015).

There are 46 banking groups currently designated as likely to receive systemic support in Europe, and DBRS incorporates 1 notch of uplift in the senior debt and deposit ratings of 39 banking groups, and 2 notches or more of uplift in the ratings of 2 banking groups. The remaining 5 banking groups (BBVA, CaixaBank, Santander, Caixa Geral de Depósitos, Intesa Sanpaolo) do not have any uplift in their ratings because the IA is at the same level or higher than the sovereign rating. The reviews of 3 banking groups that were already Under Review with Negative or Developing Implications (Banca Monte dei Paschi di Siena, Novo Banco, Banco Comercial Português) now also incorporate a review of their support assumptions.

During the review period DBRS will consider whether to change the support designation of the 46 banking groups from SA2 to SA3, which is the category for banks in countries where DBRS has no expectation of systemic support or is not confident enough that timely systemic support would be forthcoming in times of need to add a notch for systemic support. Such a conclusion would lead to the removal of any uplift and a downgrade of the senior ratings for any affected banks.

BANKS WITH POSITIVE FUNDAMENTAL TRENDS

At the time of the announcement of this review, 7 banking groups (UBS, KBC, Belfius, Abanca, Swedbank, Svenska Handelsbanken, permanent tsb) had positive trends on their ratings due to signs of improvement in their fundamental credit profiles. The ratings of these banks have also been placed Under Review with Negative Implications in this rating action. However, when concluding the review, DBRS will consider whether the fundamental trends are strong enough to lead to an increase in the Intrinsic Assessment (IA) that could offset the potential removal of systemic support.

DBRS expects to conclude the reviews in September and it is also possible that there could be positive developments at other banks during this period, and this will also be taken into account when concluding the reviews.

REVIEW OF DEPOSIT RATINGS

Alongside the senior debt ratings, DBRS has placed under review banks' deposit ratings – a rating that is applied to non-covered deposits (covered deposits are deposits up to EUR 100,000 and are excluded from the bail-in tool). DBRS also recognises that under BRRD non-covered deposits are available for loss absorption, but that natural person and SME non-covered deposits have a higher priority than ordinary unsecured creditors. During the review period, DBRS will consider whether this stipulation provides sufficient clarity to differentiate between deposit and senior debt ratings.

LEVEL OF LOSS ABSORBING CAPITAL

Under BRRD, loss absorbing subordinated debt and capital provide protection for senior bondholders. During the review period, DBRS will consider how to differentiate between banks with different levels of loss absorbing resources. However, given the evolution that is still taking place in banks' balance sheets and the regulatory environment, DBRS may decide to postpone a decision on such differentiation until there is greater clarity on the required levels of loss absorbing capital.

GOVERNMENT-OWNED BANKS

During the review period, DBRS will also consider the incorporation of some form of support for fully-owned government banks, where the banks have a policy function and are expected to remain fully-owned for the foreseeable future. DBRS will review the flexibility for the government as owner to take the necessary actions to maintain the capital and other fundamentals of such banks.

DBRS TELECONFERENCE

DBRS will host a teleconference tomorrow on bank rating actions related to systemic support hosted by Alan Reid, Group Managing Director, Global Financial Institutions and Sovereign Ratings Group, the discussion will include comments from Elisabeth Rudman, John van Boxmeer, William Schwartz and other members of the Global Financial Institutions Group. The discussion will last approximately 30 minutes and will be followed by a question-and-answer session.
